

CONFIGURATION OF REDIRECTION TABLES

ABSTRACT

5

In certain embodiments, a determination is made of a number of conflicting entries in a first redirection table having a first set of entries, wherein the first set of entries is capable of being mapped to a second set of entries of a second redirection table. A mapping is performed of the first set of entries to the second set of entries, based on the 10 number of conflicting entries in the first redirection table.